

Ray Bronson

Soon after I decided to get my first border collie in 2010 I was introduced to the sport of dog agility and began taking classes. Within a short two years I had second BC and began competing in local AAC trials. At the insistence of one my BC's breeders, I also entered the conformation ring at about the same time and we also dabbled in Rally O. We earned our CKC conformation Championship title but, shortly thereafter I concentrated much of my time and effort with my new-found fascination, agility. With the introduction of agility into my life, I was fortunate enough to find a fantastic local agility club, Capital Comets, to join at Victoria. I became further involved in agility through volunteer work as a director with the club for the past 5 years.

Over the past 6 years I've had the good fortune to have my two older dogs earn their ATChC and many subsequent AAC and CKC titles. In addition to having a blast with my dogs participating in agility, I've also had the equally great fortune to meet many tremendous people with likeminded addictions to having fun at agility with our ever-faithful furry partners.

Just to make certain that I didn't have an opportunity to get complacent, I made the decision two years ago to get my third Border Collie. So now, I am excited to begin the training cycle all over again with a starter pup.

Aside from my dogs I have had a life-long passion for visual arts. I attempt to feed my creative side when I find the time through creating stain glass pieces, sketching, painting portraitures, designing/carving indigenous west coast art.
