Bio – Sandi Maday

I took out a membership with AAC and started to compete in AAC agility in 2003 and have earned numerous ATChC's with my dogs, as well as attending numerous AAC Regionals and National events. I have a passion for the grassroots competitors and believe my volunteer and work experience and knowledge would be an asset to the Agility Association of Canada.

I began judging for AAC in 2015, and have been fortunate to judge trials in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec, and I have also judged at numerous Regionals. I continually participate in Course Design seminars to keep up on the latest trends and believe it's important to continue to improve course design.

My volunteer commitments have included:

- working for both my AAC and CKC dog agility clubs organizing trials;
- working for my breed clubs in various capacities;
- pet therapy visits in a reading program at the library and schools;
- committees for AAC and CKC.

I currently work as a legal assistant for a lawyer who specializes in Condominium Law, and hope to retire at the end of 2027. I also worked in promotions and marketing for about 15 years, doing a lot of special event planning and execution. I have always held the belief that it's important to volunteer and give back to the community, and letting my name stand for Vice-President of AAC is another way I can contribute back to agility.

I currently live with 3 American Cocker Spaniels, Dodger (13), Gabbi (11) and Lottie(2). The older 2 are both retired from agility. My young girl Lottie and I are currently training and are dabbling in some FEO runs and I hope to start running her for real in 2027.
